Leonard Singbiel serves as the Firm's Practice Support Services Director, overseeing e-discovery, paralegal, and the Firm's Legal Support Services team, including secretarial and administrative support. He possesses more than 20 years of experience in the fields of litigation and corporate technology support, providing consulting and in-house support to international law firms and clients at multinational corporations.

Leonard emphasizes a proactive approach to legal support. He focuses on helping attorneys and staff engage in efficient workflows and practices that maximize the value provided to clients, while minimizing the cost. He possesses advanced expertise and experience with the latest document review database platforms and Technology Assisted Review (TAR) strategies. Leonard's depth of experience enables him to advise attorneys on best practices that address the unique circumstances and challenges faced by all types of clients in the handling, review, and production of Electronically Stored Information (ESI). In addition to providing support and consulting for litigation matters, Leonard has experience working directly with corporate and transactional teams in leveraging machine learning technology during the due diligence and contract review process.

Leonard began his career in the legal industry shortly after graduating with his undergraduate degree by introducing then-emerging litigation support technology to a boutique business litigation firm in suburban Detroit. After moving to Los Angeles, he served as a trial technology consultant to legal teams on "bet the company" litigations and then transitioned to provide litigation support services in-house at a top Am Law 100 firm. Prior to joining Nossaman, Leonard managed a global team of practice support professionals for five years at one of the world's largest law firms.
